

Education for All

MASHAV, in alignment with the 2030 Agenda and Goal 4 of 'Ensuring Inclusive, Equitable and Quality Education and the Promotion of Lifelong Learning Opportunities for All', addresses the need to develop alternative integrative learning opportunities to equip learners with 21st century skills to become familiar with new technologies to promote sustainable development.

Education is a human right and the basic building block of every society. In today's knowledge-driven economies, access to quality education and the chances for development are closely connected.

Today's education and learning methods establish that the content and knowledge learned should be relevant to the changing reality, while students need to acquire skills and knowledge for optimal performance in the 21st century. Teaching is adapted to the diversity of students, breaking down barriers between the outside world and the school world, utilizing technology to promote the processes of teaching both in the pedagogical and in the administrative level.

MASHAV shares with fellow nations the unique knowledge accumulated in Israel, addressing the direct challenge of achieving inclusive and quality education for all by building support systems in a wide range of educational frameworks relating to the different sectors of each community.
